NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF OPEN SCHOOLING

How to Enrol in NIOS

A guide for librarians and learners

NIOS Regional Centre, Bengaluru

2025 · English · Government of India · Open Educational Resource
Arivu Kendra sample edition · Government of Karnataka

Contents

1. Who can enrol 3
2. Documents 6
3. Accredited Institutes by district 10
4. Admission blocks and dates 14
5. Slow Learner Certificate 17
6. Frequently asked questions 21

This is a generated sample edition created for the Arivu Kendra public preview. The text on these pages is placeholder prose so that reading tools, previews and downloads can be demonstrated end to end. The real edition will be supplied by the content provider.

CHAPTER 1

Who can enrol

Who can enrol, which documents to carry, where the nearest Accredited Institute is (a district-wise list is included), what the Slow Learner Certificate exemption means, and the dates for each admission block. Librarians cannot take admissions, but they can get a learner to the right door.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

CHAPTER 2

Documents

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

CHAPTER 3

Accredited Institutes by district

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

CHAPTER 4

Admission blocks and dates

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

CHAPTER 5

Slow Learner Certificate

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

CHAPTER 6

Frequently asked questions

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.

Ask the student what they like doing on a Sunday. Not what they are good at, not what their parents want, what they actually choose when nobody is choosing for them. The answer is usually the beginning of a career, if you follow it far enough.

The first session will be small. Read anyway. Read as if the room were full, sitting where you can be seen from the door. Children are curious creatures; by the third week they will have found you.

Keep a list of every scholarship with four columns: who can apply, how much, what papers, and the last date. Pin it where everyone can see it. Half the scholarships in Karnataka go unclaimed because nobody knew the date.

Begin with the room. Move one table, open one window, put the best book face-out on the lowest shelf. Children notice a room that has been arranged for them before they notice anything you say.

Write the date, the amount and the name every single time, in the same place on the page. A ledger is not a story; it is a habit. The habit is what protects the group when memory fails or when someone new takes over.

A one-page résumé has four parts: who you are, what you have studied, what you can do, and how to reach you. Everything else is decoration. If you are not sure whether to include something, leave it out and be ready to talk about it instead.